(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 30.—The Daily Mail states that a trade agreement has been drawn up between Great Britain and Soviet Russia but has not yet been signed, and it is expected that negotiations will soon be opened for the conclusion of formal peace with Russia.

According to this paper, the agreement provides for the release of British prisoners in Russia, for a mutual undertaking on the part of each country that it shall not engage in hostile acts against the other, for the Soviet to cease its anti-British propaganda, and for the recognition of certain classes of pre-war debts, viz., for goods supplied and services rendered.

The agreement is conditional upon the cessation of Russia's hostilities against Poland.

It is stated that the Cabinet is considering the agreement, while similar agreements will be placed before Italy and Japan, but France is remaining aloof.

WASHINGTON TO STAND FIRM ON JAPAN'S STATUS

State Department Understood To Oppose Idea Of Joint Commission

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, September 27.—Though officials decline to discuss for publication the question of the proposed anti-Japanese legislation in California, the impression prevails that the proposal for referring the question to a joint commission is unacceptable, but, as far as can be learned, this proposal has not yet formally been communicated to the Washington Government.

The attitude of the State Department is described as one calculated to prevent any alarm in the United States, even approximating that which is apparently growing in Japan.

LEAGUE PLANS MEANS TO END LITHUANIA WAR

First Occasion On Which Association Of Nations Has Intervened

London, September 29.—A Commission under the suspices of the League of Nations is going to Suwalki to make an effort to settle the Polish-Lithuanian conflict. Colonel Chardignay (France) has been appointed President. Major Keenan will represent Great Britain and Captain Yamanaki Japan. The Italian and Spanish representatives have not yet been appointed.

The first duty of the Commission will be to take all the necessary steps for the prevention of further hostilities. They will be empowered to recommend any military dispositions to the two Governments for the avoidance of collision.

As soon as the Lithuanians have obtained guarantees from the Bolsheviki and all Red troops have evacuated Lithuanian territory, it will be the duty of the Commission to enforce the neutrality of the disputed area.

This is the first occasion that the League of Nations has actively intervened in a dispute between two nations and the result of its efforts are therefore awaited with interest.

It is expected that the Moldavia, which is being built at Messrs. Cammell Laird's shipyards, and the Mongolia, which is being built at Armstrong, Whitworth's, will be in commission in autumn, 1921.

The Japanese Command has issued a declaration to the railwaymen, stating that in view of the excessive work in connection with the evacuation of troops the Japanese Command has handed over to the Ussuri Administration Yen 300,000 to cover arrears of wages and also to provide food free or at a very low price, whichever the railwaymen prefer.

SHANGHAI LEADS IN INTERPORT CRICKET MATCH

FIRST DAY'S PLAY

Shanghai	118
Hankow (for 9 wickets)	49

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Hankow, October 1.—On a ground that had been well soaked with rain, but that was rapidly drying, the Interport Cricket Match between Shanghai and Hankow commenced today.

Shanghai batted first, and helped by A. E. Piercy's well-played 36, ran up what (on a bowlers wicket) can be considered the good score of 118.

Hankow going in late in the day could not stand up against Shanghai's attack with the result that they lost nine wickets for 49 runs.

SMUGGLED GEMS FOR RUSS FUND SOUGHT IN PORT

Americans Make Seizures But None Of Parcels Has Appeared Here

Confiscated jewels that are said to have been distributed throughout the world by smugglers for sale to aid the cause of the Russian Bolshevists have not yet appeared in Shanghai, in the opinion of the Settlement police. A careful watch for part of the loot has been kept, but as yet no case in which suspicion was justified has been unearthed.

It was believed that Shanghai would be one of the first cities in which an attempt would be made to dispose of the jewels. Consequently, the authorities were on the alert but without developing any clue.

There is a possibility that some of the gems may have been disposed of in the Chinese City or in Frenchtown, but no reports have been made.

SMUGGLERS CAUGHT

(Reuter's Service)

London, September 29.—A fresh attempt on the part of Bolshevik agents to smuggle into America huge parcels of most valuable diamonds (obtained as already stated by general confiscation) has failed, and the jewels have been seized by the authorities at New York.

Many of the stones were worth £20 000 each. The parcels were addressed to M. Martens, the unrecognised Soviet agent in America.

It is estimated that Russian diamonds to the value of sixty millions sterling are being hawked about the diamond markets of the world at the present time.

FOUR KNOWN TO HAVE LOST LIVES IN JAPAN STORM

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Oct. 1.—As was anticipated, the edge of a typhoon struck Tokio and Yokohama last night, causing considerable damage, dislocating the means of locomotion, demolishing many houses and flooding low-lying areas.

It is known that one person was killed in Tokio and three at Yokohama, but it is feared that the death-roll in the flooded districts is heavy. Many people were injured.

In the Shimoshibuya section of Tokio, which was partly flooded, many families took to the housetops, necessitating their rescue by police and firemen in the darkness, amid running water, in which pieces of timber and furniture were drifting.

The electricity supply failed, and apprehensions of an earthquake and tidal wave added to the terrors of the population.

Today has been fine and sunny.

Tokio, September 30.—A typhoon is sweeping Japan. The wires are badly affected. Torrential rains are falling in Tokio and low-lying districts are flooded. The storm is expected to strike the city after midnight and much damage is anticipated.

COAL STRIKE TO START TODAY IF WAGE INCREASE IS NOT GRANTED

Conference Terminates When Workers Refuse To Recede From Their Stand

WANT LARGER OUTPUT

Owners Cite Increase Of Force To Justify Employers' Position

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 30.—The deadlock with which the coal conference has terminated is due to the fact that the miners in the course of the week's negotiations have adhered to their original demand for an immediate increase of 2s. per shift, irrespective of any increased output.

The owners proposed that the amount of 242,000,000 tons should be fixed as the average output, with increased wages for all tonnage produced above the datum line.

The miners' counter-proposal was that last quarter's output should be the datum line.

The owners justified their figure, which is above the output for last year, on the ground that the number of employes is constantly increasing.

LAST WORD IS SAID

The position today is that if nothing is done to prevent or further postpone the strike, the stoppage of work will commence on Saturday.

The last word in the matter appears to rest with the meeting of miners' delegates today.

London, Sept. 29.—The conference between coal-owners and miners has ended in a deadlock. According to the joint statement issued by the two parties, after a lengthy discussion, the coal-owners submitted a scheme for the future regulation of wages based on output, which, after full consideration, the miners' representatives would not accept.

The latter in turn submitted further proposals for the present and future relation of output to wages which, after full consideration, the coal-owners' representatives would not accept.

REPORT TO GOVERNMENT

Both parties are reporting separately to the Government.

Much disappointment has been caused by the failure of the conference, which was attended by 50 colliery owners and the full personnel of the Executive of the Miners' Federation. The proceedings lasted for two hours in the morning and three and a-half hours in the afternoon and evening, but, despite the protected nature of the discussions, the general opinion outside the conference chamber, based on reliable reports, prevailed until a late moment that there were good prospects of a settlement.

As the above communique indicates, there is apparently an unbridgeable gulf from precisely the same cause that obtained last week, until the Government suggested an algebraical formula for a datum line for the joint consideration of the two parties that is to say, the coal-owners cannot see eye to eye with the miners' insistence that 2s. per shift should be conceded right away before—in contradistinction from simultaneously with—the consideration of a scheme awarding increased pay for increased production.

ATTITUDE OF WALES

The South Wales Miners' Federation has all along insisted on an immediate wage advance. Moreover, it is strongly antagonistic to any settlement on the basis of payment by results unless this is endorsed by the general body of miners. A special conference at Cardiff today endorsed this attitude.

One of the greatest difficulties which has beset the abortive London conference is that the two parties have been regarding the situation from different angles. Thus the coal-owners have always borne in mind that increased output is the basis of the Government plan, while the miners have from the first put the question of wages in the forefront; hence there has been a considerable amount of fencing.

Some light is thrown on the miners' standpoint if the statement made by Mr. John Cairns, M. P. for Morpeth, to the Stockburn miners is credible. He predicted an early movement for the reduction of miners' working hours to six daily.

CONFER WITH PREMIER

Later.—Immediately after the break-up of today's conference, both parties proceeded to Down-

POLICY OF BRITISH IS GIVEN OUT BY PAPER

Reprisals Discouraged But In All Cases Police Have Extreme Provocation Is Government View Of Situation

(Reuter's Service)

London, September 28.—The Daily Chronicle today publishes an inspired statement of the Government's Irish Policy, which points out that provocations have been far greater than the public has realised.

The most ingenious devices of the latest "murder clubs" of the Far West have been imported into Ireland and have resulted in the assassination of 100 policemen during the last few months, some of the victims being slain by shots, fired from the inside of their assailant's pocket.

The collection of evidence has been impossible owing to the public being terrorised. All possible witnesses are living in daily fear of their lives but a peculiar feature of the situation is that the murderers are often well-known to the police, although there have been no convictions owing to lack of evidence.

SEE MURDERERS AT LARGE

Hence the police are forced to stand by and see the murderers of their comrades at liberty and unpunished. This has proved a terrible strain on the discipline and forbearance of that splendid force.

The Government knows that a great many of these facts especially the extent of the red terror in Ireland have been concealed from the British public by deliberate and systematic interference by pro-Sinn operators with the telegraphs between Ireland and England.

These means have been frequently used to conceal the brutality of the murder campaign and, moreover, the same tampering with telegraphs is now being used to exaggerate in England the accounts of reprisals.

It is the intention of the Government to check reprisals by such disciplinary measures as are best fitted to the situation. The Government refuses to apply the strict letter of civil law to acts committed in hot blood under the most extreme provocation, for example, seeing Head Constable Burke foully murdered, at Balbriggan while celebrating his recent promotion.

WILL NOT HANG POLICE

Although the Government refuses to hang policemen while other criminals are at large, it will take summary measures to repress excesses. At the same time the Government points out that the best way to stop reprisals would be for the murderers to cease murdering as there has not been a single instance of a police attack without provocation.

It is the Government's intention to persist in the endeavors to bring settlement to Ireland by policy rather than by arms but settlement cannot come as a concession to murders.

The Government intends to proceed with the Home Rule proposals, hoping that they will provide a rallying center for the moderates, but does not intend to adopt any desperate new policy, such as the proposed retirement to the coast of Ireland, retaining only ports.

TANG ASSUMES OFFICE BUT MU KEEPS HIS SEAL

Admiral Is Named Military Governor And Canton Holds Celebration

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, Oct. 1.—The blazing off of crackers at six o'clock yesterday evening and a profuse display of flags throughout Canton announced the citizens' and Provincial Assembly's election of Admiral Tang Ting-kwang as Acting Military Governor, in place of Mu Yung-hsien, who has not handed over his seal of office.

The meeting pressed Lin Pao-yi to secure Mu's surrender of the seal without delay. The election was carried out at the wish of Lu Yung-ting for Mu Yung-hsien's suppression.

Canton, Sept. 30.—The political and military situation is unchanged.

Mu Yung-hsien is calling in forces from different districts, as he is able to do through the terms of the armistice having been imperfectly drawn up, and he is taking advantage of the lack of able leaders in the Cantonese movement.

Lu Yung-ting, favors the retirement of Mu Yung-hsien, but Chen Chiung-ming is persona non grata. Lu states that he would employ the Kwangsi army to crush Chen Chiung-ming. Ngai Bong-ping commands Macao and the top forts, as well as most of the gunboats and police.

Tsen Chun-hsuan and Yang Wintai are residing with Mu Yung-hsien at the latters headquarters, while Wen Tsung-hsien and Chen Chin-to are living at Shameen.

General, Believed Dead, Rises As Head Of Army To End China Corruption

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Sept. 29.—A noted leader of the first and second revolutions, Hwang Hsing of Hunan, has suddenly "come to life." A printed proclamation stamped with his signature has been received by the foreign Legations and many prominent Chinese officials.

The writer of this proclamation claims to be the original Hwang Hsing who was the confederate of Sun Yat-sen in plotting the overthrow of the Manchus.

He states that the three varying rumors as to his death are equally untrue, and that he has merely been in retirement for political reasons, but has, however, during all this time been working secretly against the enemies of and traitors to his country.

He now announces in the name of his "cloudy army," which he claims is at his beck and call, that he is about to make a general clean-up of Chinese corruption, but he assures foreign officials that he will respect all treaty rights and protect foreigners.

Recipients are mystified by the strange communication, which appears to be written in the name of the doughty old revolutionist general for the purpose of conveying a threat to certain political factions. What is meant by the "Cloudy Army," or "Army of Mist" is perhaps known only to a few recipients who would not care to tell.

Governor Cox stated that, if Mr. Bryan had been nominated, he would have supported him, adding that he was fostering the progressive idea, which he had learned under Mr. Bryan's leadership.

Russians Of Shanghai Want Soviet At Moscow To Name Diplomatic Representatives

All Parties Unite In Opposing Peking's Action In Appointing Agents To Do Work Formerly Done By Diplomatic Body

The action of the Chinese government in appointing officials to take over supervision of Russian affairs and interests following withdrawal of recognition of the Russian Legation and consulates is strongly condemned by Russians in Shanghai, a number of whom held a meeting this week at which resolutions setting forth their views were adopted. It was reported that all groups and shades of opinion were represented at this meeting and in the resolutions adopted the position is taken that only the Soviet Government at Moscow can properly name representatives to act for Russian residents in China.

Following is a statement that was issued in connection with the stand taken at the meeting together with the translated text of the resolutions adopted:

THE STATEMENT

"With the official suspension of diplomatic relations between the Chinese Foreign Office and the former Russian Ambassador Kudashef, the Russian communities in China have found themselves in a quite indefinite position as regards their rights.

"There are two different groups of Russians in the community of Shanghai and they have answered to the above named matter, of course quite differently as their points of view differ.

"The first group, which outnumbers the second, consists of that element of Russians which has made its escape from Siberia to China since the overthrow of Kolchak and Rosanoff. The most of them are officers of the Kolchak, Kalmikoff, Semehoff and Rosanoff armies, and some of them took part in the expeditions which were murdering peasants and burning their houses during the fall and winter of 1919.

"These men have practically lost all connection with Russia and the Russian people. Their chances to go back to Russia depend exclusively upon the possibility of the reactionary or even monarchical power to substitute the Soviet system in Russia and the democratic in the Far-Eastern Republic.

"The former Consul, Mr. Grosse, and the Feodoroff company which seized the Volunteer Fleet steamers last August are also with this group.

SECOND GROUP

"The second group consists of Russians who had escaped to Shanghai from the Kolchak, Rosanoff, Kalmikoff and Semenoff regime. These are mostly civilians, men of liberal professions; democrats and some of them socialists. They consider themselves citizens of Russia regardless of her political form of Government. Morever they consider at present the Moscow Government as the de-facto central government of all Russia.

"Russia to them is now just the same fatherland as before, and they are always ready to go there.

"These above described two groups have passed resolutions regarding representation for the Russian communities in China.

"The first of them, the reactionary one, insists upon letting the old Russian Consuls in China, who were supporting the reactionary refugees in their fight against Russia, remain as representatives of Russia.

"The second group does not think it possible and passed on the 28th of September a resolution to the effect that new representatives must be appointed.

"Here is the text of this resolution:

"By the fact of official suspension by the Chinese Government of diplomatic relations with the former Russian Ambassador in China the Russian citizens are put in an indefinite status.

STATES POSITION

"We citizens of the Russian community in Shanghai, men of different parties and political creeds, consider this act of the Chinese Government as a logical outcome of the situation which was created since the overthrow of the Kerensky Government when the Russian diplomatic missions aboard did not recognise the Central Russian Government and were not recognised by the latter.

"We cannot permit that the defense of our rights, until the old Russo-Chinese treaties will be reviewed by Soviet Russia and China, shall be handed over to China or, moreover, to any other foreign power or to the Consular Corps in corpore.

"We categorically deny any right for occasional groups of Russians to select representatives for the defense of Russians in China, just as to the Chinese Government to invite any Counselors on Russian affairs.

"We consider that the right to appoint diplomatic officials to represent Russia and defend Russian citizens aboard belongs only to the Russian Central Government, in this instance—to the Soviet Government.

LOOK FOR REUNION

"Considering ourselves citizens of a united Russia, we think it possible to have a representative only appointed by Soviet Russia, which is the center to which the Russian far eastern states are looking for reunion.

"But until the time when a representative of Soviet Russia will be able to arrive officially in China, we find it the only possible way of settling this temporary indefinte state of affairs to appeal to the Mission of the Far-Eastern Republic (Verdhne-Udinsk Mission) and to the representative of the Vladivostok Government, who are now in Peking, to communicate with their governments in order to appoint a representative to Shanghai as Russian Consul."

The meeting was held the 28th of September at the offices of the local Russian Newspaper "The Shanghai Life" and was attended by about 40 persons, people of different political parties and views. The resolution was carried almost unanimously. There were only one against it and three abstaining from the vote.

SOME OF MEN PRESENT

Among those who were present at the meeting and who voted for the resolution were: Mr. Tarassoff, the manager of the Shanghai Office of the All-Russian Union of Cooperative Societies, "Centrosoyus," Mr. Novitsky, the former editor of the oldest Vladivostok newspaper, "Dalnevostochnoie Obozrenie" (The Far-Eastern Review), now with The Shanghai Life, Dr. Holper, Dr. Lobzovsky, Mr. Vihristoff, a Social-Revolutionary, a member of the All-Russian Constituent Assembly, Colonel Popoff, members of the editorial staff of The Shanghai Life—Mr. Semeshko, Goorman, Baranovsky, Mr. Bogoliuboff, a Social-Revolutionary, Mr. Podgursky, a well-known Russian painter, Mr. Mattanan, Mr. Jukovsky, engineer, Mr. Zarhin, the Shanghai correspondent of the "Russta" and "Dalta" News Agencies, and others.

PLAN CO-OPERATION

The constitution also provides for "mutual co-operation with existing churches in the upholding and advancement of the cause of Christ in Shanghai."

The congregation also voted at the business meeting last Sunday to proceed toward the incorporation of the Community Church under American Law under the regulations of the U. S. Court for China at Shanghai. Nearly 200 persons have already signified their desire of becoming members by signing the bond of union. The American Song Service is now automatically merged with the Community Church congregation.

Inquest Is Held Over Body Of Drowned Seaman

A verdict of accidental drowning was returned before the British Coroner, Mr. G. W. King, yesterday when an inquest was held into the death of the seaman James Goodfield of the British gunboat Cricket, drowned off the Customs Jetty on Wednesday at midnight.

Three of deceased's shipmates gave evidence, stating that a party of the gunboat Cricket men were returning on board from the Union Jack Club. Two of them got into a first sampan and two more had got into the second when deceased was seen to catch hold of the canopy of the sampan. The next they knew was that the sampan had overturned and they were struggling in the water. There was a very strong flood tide and Goodfield was not seen to come to the surface again.

Sergt. Murphy, River Police spoke to the body being recovered yesterday afternoon about 150 feet south of the Customs Jetty.

CHINESE Y.M.C.A. PLANS TO BUILD HOTEL STRUCTURE

Hongkong Road Property Sold And More Funds To Be Sought For Project

The Chinese Young Men's Christian Association of Shanghai has recently disposed of its property on Hongkong Road and will purchase a lot in the southern district of the settlement upon which to erect a modern association building to care for the needs of young men in the southern and western districts of the city.

Sometime ago the association raised by public subscription a sum of money with the purpose of erecting a Men's Hotel. Something less than $160,000 was secured in subscriptions of which up to date the sum of $52,384.85 has been paid in cash.

MAKE CAREFUL PLANS

After the campaign was completed the directors gave careful thought to the plans for the future and conferred with leading association secretaries in China and from abroad. The membership in the present association increased very rapidly and the need for branch buildings became apparent. It was decided that the best scheme would be to erect a new branch building somewhere in the French concession or south which should include generous space for dormitories and restaurant, thus supplying the need for the hotel features. It should also include association features for benefit of the young men of that section of the city.

With this in view the association sold the Hongkong Road property which was purchased as site of the Men's Hotel. At the last Board of Directors meeting a committee was appointed to investigate places that are available as sites for a new building and report for further consideration.

NEED MORE BUILDINGS

It is thought that Shanghai needs several association buildings which will have all the features of an up-to-date association. It is impossible to provide for the needs of the young men and boys of Shanghai in one building. The cities of America like Chicago have twelve to twenty buildings. The present Shanghai building cares pretty well for the needs of the central and northern districts. It does not care for the southern or the eastern districts. A recent study shows that three-fourths of the present membership lives in the central and northern districts. There are only one thousand out of the four thousand that are from the western, southern or eastern districts. Eventually these districts should have association buildings.

It is hoped that the money raised for the hotel project will be the nucleus of the sum needed to provide adequately for the southern district and at the same time provide such hotel features as were originally contemplated in the hotel scheme.

The sum at present in hand is not adequate to purchase land and erect a building. It will be necessary to raise an additional amount from the Shanghai community and it is hoped that the International Committee will give some substantial help. The project is to be carried through as early as possible, at latest at some time during next year.

Dr. Griffith Thomas' Lecture "Why I Believe The Bible"

The third of the addresses being given by Dr. Griffith Thomas at the Union Church was on "Why I Believe the Bible." For the last fifty or sixty years no subject has been more discussed than the Bible, and in many quarters there is a feeling that Scripture is not the same today as it was to our forefathers, that the many books and articles and lectures during the last half century have affected the character of the Bible in such a way as to weaken its authority and make it vitally different from what it was in former ages. This contention, however, is incorrect, because the Bible has one element in it which is exactly the same today as it ever was, and without any pretense at prophecy it may be said with confidence that nothing will ever touch it, still less destroy it.

This element is the Supernatural, which remains unaffected by all the discussions and oppositions of modern days. Just as life is incapable of being analysed in any laboratory, so the Supernatural element in the Bible is entirely incapable of analysis by any scholarly instrument. History, literature and language may be analysed, but the superhuman in the Bible is wholly beyond even the keenest instrument which the ablest can use. There are seven Supernatural features in the Bible.

SUPERNATURAL CREATION

The first is a supernatural creation, for the creation of the mouth must necessarily be a miracle, since it is wholly beyond the province of any science to explain it. A scientist can only deal with what he can see, and the source of the visible creation is beyond any natural knowledge. All that science can say is that originally everything was in a fluid or gaseous mass, with great power of velocity, but this presupposes the existence of two elements, matter and motion, which, however, need the Supernatural act of God to explain them. Even if the theory of evolution could be proved there would still be required the supernatural act of creation with God as the source.

The second Supernatural element in the Bible is revelation. There is a religion in the Old Testament first given and then developed in Jewish history, and this religion stands out from every other system in the world as superhuman. Critical thought has been trying to dissect the various books of the Bible, but this is of no value, and, indeed, is wholly futile as long as the religion itself remains unchanged. The only explanation is that it is Supernatural.

JEWS WERE DIFFERENT

The third feature is that in the Bible there is an account of a supernatural nation, that of Israel. Looking around on the other nations of the time, the Jewish people were unique and absolutely different from every other race in the world. Why is it, asks a great scholar, that the gods of the nations surrounding Israel never developed into the universal God of the Jews? The answer can only be given by predicating the Supernatural in connection with Israel.

Then there comes Supernatural expectation. Prediction is an element of the Old Testament which cannot be set aside. While we do not know what a day may bring forth, one prophet foretells the captivity of the Northern Kingdom forty years before it happened. Another prophet foretells the captivity of the Southern Kingdom one hundred fifty years before it happened, while prophecies of the Messiah, referring to different features of time, family, place, circumstances, can be found covering a period of at least eight hundred years. Only by the Supernatural can all this be explained.

Turning to the New Testament, there is a supernatural incarnation, for the person and work of Christ can only be explicated in the line of the presence of the superhuman and Divine.

This is followed by the supernatural manifestation of the Christian Church. From the beginning there was no compulsion for men to become Christians, and no advantage in being so. Indeed, the following of Christ was associated often with persecution, ostracism and death. There is no way of accounting for the commencement and the continued existence of the Christian community today except by a belief in the presence of God and His supernatural power.

All this finds a supernatural confirmation in many elements in the Bible. Thus its morality is based on righteousness, not on utility. Its teaching is as practicable today as it was at the beginning, for it cannot be outgrown and most of all, its power to redeem and transform men is evident from the stories from the lives of such men as Paul and many more. Nothing but a superhuman element can explain these various features.

All this is capable of being put to the test of personal trust and loyal obedience. When a man is willing to submit himself to the Bible, he soon has the evidence in his own life of its superhuman and Divine power. During the last quarter of a century much has been done to emphasize the necessity and importance of maintaining belief in this Supernatural element. In England America and Canada Bible Leagues have been formed in support of the positions now set forth and more recently a series of conferences have been held all over America which have had for their object the re-assertion of those fundamental realities which are found in the Bible. A similar movement has recently been started in China, and there is every indication that it will become a great power in order to unite those who believe that the Bible today is precisely what it always has been in its Supernatural power and Divine authority. The reason why Scripture is accepted is that it is historically trustworthy, spiritually efficacious, and supremely authoritative.

The final lecture of the series will be given this evening on "Why I Believe in Christianity."

Passenger Vessels Lose Money, Says Shipping Expert

High Cost Of Labor Is Blamed For Loss As Tariffs Are Raised

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 28.—As regards the present high level of passenger rates for ocean voyages, Sir Thomas Fisher, General Manager of the Canadian-Pacific Ocean Services, has instanced the case of a passenger mail liner which recently made the voyage from London to Bombay with a full complement of passengers, and returned to London showing an actual loss on the round voyage of £10,000, not taking into account depreciation, interest on capital and other standing charges.

Another example which has been mentioned is that of a passenger liner which on a round trip to Australia and back showed a loss of £35,000.

These deficits are due to the great rise in working costs. The Times, however, considers that lower passage rates are likely to be essential for the encouragement of travel.

Participation In Trade With Far East And Britain Interfered With

(Reuter's Service)

London, September 29.—An important meeting of shipowners in London yesterday discussed a proposal for United States vessels to take part in regular trade between the Far East and Great Britain and the Continent of Europe.

It is pointed out that this is interesting from the fact of its being evidence that American shipping authorities are desirous that American vessels should take part in shipping services to all parts of the world, as well as those which only run from American ports.

The various lines at present trading with the Far East entirely approved of the principle that the Americans should have a share in this trade, and proposed that their ships should trade on equal terms.

A difficulty, however, arose, inasmuch as the rebate system is illegal in the United States, and the discussion of the subject was adjourned.

NEW AUCTIONEERS COMPANY OPENS; RECEPTION HELD

Crowd Attends Inauguration Ceremony Of Shanghai's Latest Enterprise

"CIVILITY" EMPHASISED

Chairman Of Board Adopts Unique Motto For His Company's Staff

The Shanghai Auctioneers Company officially opened for business yesterday as auctioneers, valuers, appraisers, fire loss adjusters, general brokers, land and real estates and coal merchants at 97 Szechuen Road.

Mr. F. W. White is manager of the new concern and Mr. Lawrance K. Kentwell is acting chairman of the board of directors.

A reception to friends and customers of the new company and pressmen was held in the morning. A large number of visitors thronged the new auction room and congratulated the staff. Tea and refreshments were served.

Mr. Kentwell, in a pleasing little speech of welcome, said:

GIVES WARM WELCOME

"As chairman of the Shanghai Auctioneers Co., it devolves on me the pleasant duty to extend to you one and all our warm welcome.

"In launching an enterprise of this nature, we do so, because we have faith in the development of Shanghai as the most important center of China's commercial activities with the outside world.

"China is bound to take her place as a world power in trade and commerce, for both the old and new world are now eagerly looking toward China for products and raw materials, and the prosperity of China reflects on the prosperity of this privileged community; indeed this is a privileged community, for we are the happiest and the most favored group of people in the world when we reflect on the chaotic conditions of Europe and even America is affected with high cost of living, strikes and labor troubles and a further testimony of Shanghai's prosperity is that nearly every other person is the proud owner of a motor car be it a Ford or a cheaper car.

COMPETITION KEEN

"While we are fully conscious of the fact that competition is indeed keen and sharp in the business of auctioneers in this city, yet with the good will of the public we hope to secure a fair share of the business.

"We have just witnessed the opening of three large Banks in this city, one after another almost within a week and this alone I venture to say, justifies the Company in embarking on an enterprise which is to serve more effectively the needs of this Community.

"In conclusion I wish to impress on all our friends who have honored us by their presence here and the general public that the motto of the Shanghai Auctioneers Co. is 'Civility' to all persons who may wish to do business with the Company and I may say that the Co. is indeed fortunate in securing the services of Mr. White (late of L. Moore and Co.) as manager of this concern.

"I dare say that Mr. White as an auctioneer can hold his own and his experience and services are once more at the disposal of the public.

CAN SELL ANYTHING

"Mr. White will sell anything for you, from a discarded steam yatch to a gocart which is too small for the first baby boy.

"I will now present to you Mr. White, who will say a few words to us."

In reply, Mr. White assured his audience that he would do his best to serve his customers and affirmed the expression of Mr. Kentwell that civility would be his password. He assured his customers that rich and poor would receive equal treatment from the company and he would see that people who send articles for auction would be received with the utmost care. He concluded by wishing Mr. Kentwell the best of wishes as the firs' chairman of the company.

Mr. T. Yang, for 12 years compradore of Messrs. L. Moore and Co., is now compradore for the new company.

CLEVELAND "INDIANS" WINNERS OF AMERICAN LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP

WILL PLAY BROOKLYN IN CHAMPIONSHIP OF WORLD; MORE "SOX" CONFESSIONS

Radio Advices Indicate That Tris Speaker's Team Has Copped Flag—Grim Spectre Of "Fraud" Finds Way Into Brooklyn Ball Field

By Dudley Burrows

(Amplified from U. S. Naval Radio)

A United States Naval radio message received today, dated New York, September 29, indicates that the Cleveland "Indians," piloted by Tris Speaker, have won the 1920 championship of the American League and will clash with the Brooklyn "Robins," who captured the National League flag, in the World Series.

The despatch is in the form of an announcement that Assistant District Attorney Lewis, of Brooklyn, acting upon information to the effect that members of the Brooklyn team had been approached with bribe offers in connection with the "series with Cleveland," had summoned the entire team to appear before him.

Another despatch, dated Detroit, September 30, states that "the final contest of the season, between Detroit and Cleveland, has been postponed on account of cold weather" and that the teams "will play a doubleheader tomorrow." This strengthens the impression that the American League schedule has been played out, with Cleveland in first place.

There were no games in either league on the 30th, on account of bad weather.

BEGINS NEXT FRIDAY

If Cleveland has won, as now seem beyond question, the world series will begin in that city on the 8th, the American League having won the toss for the privilege of opening the championship. Three games will be played in the Forest City, following which the athletes will move to Brooklyn for a similar number of games. Thereafter alternate games will be played in each city until the championship has been decided.

The hydra-headed monster of chicanery, which first evidenced itself in American baseball circles on the Pacific Coast some weeks ago, later crawling eastward to Chicago, has continued its slimy journey to the Atlantic Coast.

Word received from a newspaper reporter in New York has prevailed upon Assistant District Attorney Lewis, in the bailiwick of Brooklyn, to begin a preseason investigation of alleged bribery of Brooklyn ball-players.

THE SAME CROOKS

According to Mr. Lewis's informant, the same clique of gamblers who debauched the Chicago White Sox last year has been angling for an opportunity to "fix" certain of the Robins and have this year's series "thrown" to the Cleveland team.

"Squire" Ebbets, owner of the Brooklyn club, has offered the indefatigable efforts of his entire organisation (except the team itself) to aid in the investigation and fix the guilt or innocence of his "hired men."

The Grand Jury probe in Chicago proceeds apace. Yesterday it was "Happy" Felch, hero of several world series in bygone days, who broke down and confessed that he had agreed, in company with Eddie Cicotte, Claude Williams, Joe Jackson and Heaven-knows-who else, to disgrace themselves and the good name of baseball by "tossing off" a world's championship for a few filthy dollars.

FELCH GOT $5,000

Felch, while admitting that he had received $5,000 for participating in the fraud, declared that he "never really had a chance to help Chicago lose." He said he had made one glaring error; but insisted that it was "entirely accidental" and did not aid materially in Cincinnati's victory.

Felch testified that each of the "fixed" players was to receive $20,000, but that they were "double-crossed" and only got $5,000 each.

Since the gamblers "pot" was $100,000 this seems to indicate that there were five players "fixed." The natural conclusion would be that the other member of the ignoble quintet was a catcher, as the pitchers (Cicotte and Williams) could not easily "throw" a game without the catcher's knowledge.

WAS SCHALK IN IT?

Ray Schalk caught all of the games of the 1919 world's series for Chicago. He had 29 putouts, 15 assists and one error, and made seven hits out of 23 times at bat, for an average of .304.

The Chicago Grand Jury has returned true bills against "John Doe Brown" and "Richard Roe Sullivan." It is believed that "Brown" and "Sullivan" are merely aliases under which the gamblers negotiated with the White Sox players. So far, the self-confessed recipients of the bribes have not been indicted.

CLEVELANDERS HAMPERED

It is likely that the death of Ray Chapman, killed by a pitched ball in New York some 60 days ago, will sadly hamper the championship chances of the Cleveland club. A youngster named Lunte is playing shortstop in Chapman's place; but, while he is said to be a sensational fielder, he is not measuring up to big-league pitching, having been requisitioned from the miners on short notice.

The Cleveland line-up, according to latest advices, will probably be as follows: Graney, left field; Wambsgans, second base; Jamieson, center field; Smith, right field; Gardner, third base; O'Neill, catcher; Johnston, first base; Lunte, shortstop; with Clark, Morton, Covaleskie Bagby, Caldwell and Mails as first-string pitchers.

BROOKLYN'S LINE-UP

Brooklyn will present somewhat the same line-up as she had when she lost the world's championship four years ago. Ivy Olson, at shortstop, heads the batting list, followed by Johnston, third base; Griffith (formerly of Cincinnati) in right; Zach Wheat in left; Hy Myers, center; Konetchy, first base; Kilduff, second; Miller, catcher; and Grimes, Marquard, Pfeffer and Sherrod Smith for boxmen.

It is doubtful if Tris Speaker will be able to play for his team, having suffered a nervous collapse following Chapman's death.

Are Golf Courses Too Long?

The Fascination Of The Short Hole

BY ABE MITCHELL

(Note: Articles by this famous British golfer will appear on this page periodically)

For some time the tendency has been to make length the supreme test of golf. Courses have been stretched to the fullest length and those that are not over 6,000 yards are considered short. To some extent this is due to the modern heavy ball which not only carries further but runs further than even the old floater which, in this respect, was again so much better than the gutty. The restrictions to be placed on the manufacture of balls are very slight and, I suppose, the same conditions will continue to obtain, but from what I hear there is a revulsion of feeling against excessive length particularly among players with double figure handicaps.

It is right that courses should be difficult, but this cannot always be effected by adding yards to the length of the holes. When we play exhibition matches we are always made to use the hindmost tees. Sometimes special back tees are provided for us. From a golfing point of view this practice cannot be commended, for the addition of those extra yards frequently means that the hole is thrown out of perspective and completely spoiled.

I have a shrewd suspicion that this stretching of courses for our benefit is done so that we may not make them appear easy from the figure point of view. For some absurd reason it seems to be a reflection on a links if a players breaks 70, but it is far better that the golf should be good even if the scoring is low than that play should be made unfairly difficult and the scoring high.

I remember one case when I got into the sixties and the club officials were much perturbed. "What is wrong with the course?" they asked me. "How can we make it more difficult? We can't increase the length and surely there are sufficient bunkers?" I assured them that there was nothing wrong with the course and that they would spoil it if they began to tinker with it. I am afraid they were not very satisfied with my answer. They could not get over the fact that I had been round low down in the sixties.

TEST OF PHYSICAL ENDURANCE

Even for a professional a course can be too long. Many competitors in the Championship found Deal a severe physical strain particularly when tackling those long holes going home against the wind. Every one of us was tired at the end of the event. I was told that towards the close of his last round George Duncan looked worn out and that two or three times whilst waiting for his opponent to play sat down on the green to snatch a little rest. The experience of poor Tom Ball when he last played in the Championship at Deal was recalled. He had hit a brave brassie shot on to the last green but when he hold out he almost collapsed and he declared he could not hit another shot if it meant winning the Championship. There is no doubt that modern golf is a great test of physical endurance and one has to train almost like an athlete to avoid becoming stale and to keep fit.

If this is the effect produced on the professional how much more must the strain be felt by the amateur who, perhaps, has to be content with a round or two at the week-end. In these days when courses are dry and the ball runs far there is not so much need for hard slogging, but soon there will be softness under foot with more wind and every course will play much longer. Then we shall hear again the protests of the handicap player who has to take

LOCALS TO PLAY GOOD CRICKET MATCHES TODAY

"Married" And "Single" Will Tangle At S.C.C.—Hot Game For "Recs"

While Shanghai's cricket eleven, captured by Mr. W. C. G. Clifford, is struggling with Hankow in the up-river city, on the second day of a two-innings match, there will be two good cricket contests on local grounds.

At the S. C. C. grounds, beginning at 1:15 o'clock, the Married Men will tangle with the Single Men, as foretold in yesterday's issue of THE CHINA PRESS. This promises to be a sanguinary affair.

At the S. R. C. grounds an eleven representing that organisation will meet the ambitious young players from the Shanghai Public Schools, beginning at 2 p.m. The S. R. C. eleven includes the following players:

R. M. Ogden, G. Borras, G. Powers, H. G. Reed, G. V. Jensen, J. P. Hawes, E. J. Cooke, G. Madar, R. E. Manley, F. Madar, and H. J. Ambrose.

Reserve: E. Gifford, and H. J. P. Smith.

SHELDON AND RAMSAY WIN S.C.C. CHAMPIONSHIP AND CUMMINGS CHALLENGE CUPS

Defeat Norman And Dr. O'Hara In Doubles Finals—Third Round Of S.L.T.A. Title Play This Afternoon—Rain At Hankow

By "Forehand"

In a match featured by some very good and some very indifferent—nay, it was actually bad—tennis, played before a "small but select" gallery on the courts of the Shanghai Cricket Club yesterday afternoon, Messrs. Noel Ramsay and V. A. Sheldon defeated Messrs. E. G. Norman and Dr. W. E. O'Hara for the 1920 doubles championship of the club. The scores were 6-3, 6-4, 5-7, 6-2.

With the laurel wreaths to which the winners are entitled (but seldom get in this pushing, practical age) goes the initial possession of the Oxley Cummings Permanent Challenge Cups, now reported to be on their way from England.

According to report these cups, kindly donated by the popular sportsman and bon vivant in order to stimulate interest in tennis at the S.C.C., are of very beautiful design and worthy of the most strenuous efforts on the part of intra-club racket-wielders, to the end that their names may eventually be engraved upon the silver sides of the trophies.

But to our muttons—meaning, of course, the match.

The story can really be summed up in a sentence or two; although that would scarcely be but up a most creditable exhibition, in the main.

Were a single word all that was permitted to describe the match that word would, perforce, be Sheldon.

SHELDON INVINCIBLE

This brilliant, but sometimes unaccountable, young American exponent of the Tilden "twist" service and the McLoughlin net-smash was at the top of his game yesterday afternoon; which meant, in the parlance of the country from which he came, that "there was nuthin' to it."

Mr. Ramsay, Sheldon's partner, declared after the match that he was suffering from "tennis arm" and was able to little or nothing; but his aid, invaluable though it was at times, was subsidiary to the bewilderingly unbeatable play of his vis-a-vis.

The other answer to the loss of the match was Mr. Norman's inability to correctly judge the limitations of the court-lines. His smashies, when they landed inside, were impossible of return—but they landed there all too seldom. Most of the time they either went into the net or sailed off in the general direction of Kiangwan or Kiangnan.

O'HARA WAS STEADY

Meanwhile Dr. O'Hara, who seems suddenly to have switched his non-professional and non-domestic affections from cricket to this later day interpretation of battledore-and-shuttlecock, was plugging along with a steadiness which would have served him well had he exhibited it against Mr. Roberts in their recent singles contest. The Doctor was in good stroke and met Mr. Sheldon's determined attack with more than ordinary success.

Altogether the match was a pretty one, and those who missed it are to be condoned.

THIRD ROUND TODAY

The third round of the 1920 singles championship, S.L.T.A., is scheduled for today. Unfortunately, the contestants (who have the privilege of choosing the courts upon which they will play) have not announced where the matches will take place; hence, it is impossible to make the announcements.

Mr. W. S. A. Pott, who vanquished Mr. Sheldon in the second round, will tangle with Mr. John L. Wade, Mr. W. P. Roberts will meet Mr. P. H. Klimanek; Mr. H. H. Knowles will meet Mr. M. B. Brown; and Mr. V. Elliott will try conclusions with Mr. J. Tanaka.

TENNIS AT HANKOW

Hankow, Sept. 30.—Heavy rain today prevented the tennis match which was to have been played between teams representing Hankow and the Shanghai Cricket Club, which is scheduled to play a two-innings cricket match against the locals, starting tomorrow afternoon.

The downpour is so steady at this writing that there seems to be doubt as to the possibility of playing cricket tomorrow. In case the match opening has to go over until Saturday a Sunday session may be necessary.

Interest continues to be at white-heat over the contest and a large crowd will be on hand if the weather looks at all favorable.

There is a curious fascination about hitting a ball full bang down the middle. There is delight, too, in the full brassie which carries all obstacles and reaches the green. But to enjoy these sensations you must be capable of making the shots and if you are not there is not much pleasure derived from playing them. The long hitter, the man who consistently drives the ball sure and far, is not greatly troubled by length, but for the player who is not so certain it becomes a labor with little love in it.

I think it is a fact that amongst all golfers the most popular hole is the one-shotter with an iron club. And there is not the slightest doubt that the short hole is the most difficult one is called upon to play. It gives you little margin for error. If you are not on the green your second must be so good that you can get down in one putt if you are to secure the proper figure. All short holes, too, are severely bunkered and demand fine accuracy. Yet despite all the difficulties every one likes to feel that he is capable of reaching the green in one.

THE FASCINATING SHORT HOLE

One well-known player declares that the most popular courses ten years hence will be those which do not measure more than 5,000 yards. These are the courses, he says, where there will be most play, and where the handicap golfer will derive most enjoyment. We have just opened a short hole course at North Foreland and it has already proved very popular. It is not by any means only the resort of the elderly golfer, for it is a fine test of approaching and putting and the experienced player is greatly attracted by it. For practice purposes such a circuit of holes is ideal and we fully expect that this experiment will achieve the same success as the long course. Personally I have not yet succeeded in equalling the par score; that is, getting an average of threes. The player who can do that can be sure that there is little wrong with his game, at any rate, so far as his irons are concerned.

When we were up at Gleneagles early in the year this fine new Scottish links was criticised on the ground that it was too long for the ordinary player. But here provision has been made for the amateur by the construction of varying tees at every hole. At most holes there are three tees and the forward one is as much as sixty to eighty yards in front of the back one. And from all these tees course plays well and fairly. From the back tees you may remember that I set up a record of 71 and might well have done a 69. But that was a exceptional performance, perhaps the best I have ever accomplished and I suppose it is true that I do hit the ball further than most men without taking much out of myself. At the same time, at any rate as far as the professional is concerned, length does not always amount to difficulty. Prestwick, for instance, is the shortest course on which the Championship is played and yet the scoring there is usually as high as anywhere else.

British School Is Opened At Hankow

(China Press Correspondence)

Hankow, Sept. 28.—The British Municipal School of Hankow was formally opened last Saturday when a representative gathering of British residents were present at the new compound of the School to greet the new institution and to inspect the new premises that had just been completed for the fall term.

Mr. Cecil C. A. Kirke, acting British Consul-General at Hankow, was also present at the occasion of the opening of the British School, and in the course of a brief speech, he remarked:

"This building, I think, may be looked upon as an important landmark in the history of the British Concession of Hankow."

Continuing Mr. Kirke outlined the growth of the school: how the school was first opened in 1916, then consisting of two rooms only, due to the efforts of four or five well-known and public spirited residents who had approached the British Municipal Council and succeeded in getting a small grant for its inauguration.

SCHOOL GROWING

There were only 14 pupils in attendance in the first term. Mr. Kirke understood that in the coming term there would be 50 and 60 pupils, and that the teaching staff would be increased accordingly. In declaring the school open, the acting British Consul-General warmly congratulated all those who had been responsible for its organisation and its head mistress, Miss Gracie.

Warm tribute was also paid by the Consul to the architects Messrs. Hemmings and Berkley of Hankow, upon the extremely pleasing design of the new school building.

The school as it stands at present, is large enough to accommodate some 120 pupils. In case of future expansion, the plan of the school permits of a very easy extension so that nearly 200 pupils could be accommodated. The contract cost of the building was 24,000 taels and the fitting out will run into some 6,000 taels more.

Dr. Tenney Retires After 35 Years Work In China

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, September 29.—Charles D. Tenney, Counselor of the American Legation, and Mrs. Tenney are leaving Peking on Friday morning, October 1, for Nagasaki, whence they will sail for the United States by an American army transport leaving on or about October 10.

Dr. Tenney, who has been described by the local press as "America's grand old man in China," will be a great loss to every American in this country. He has lived in China for over 35 years, working first as a missionary for the American Board Mission, later as a teacher and university president and, finally, as a member of the American diplomatic and consular service.

In this last named service, in which he has worked almost without a break for over eleven years, he has rendered distinguished service to the Department of State and to his countrymen in general.

The Chinese, teachers, gentry merchants and officials, trusted him implicitly and gave him their full confidence; and, if it can be said of any official serving in a foreign country that he has rendered great services to that country as well as to his own, that statement can well be made of Dr. Tenney.

If you use

Kolynos Tooth Paste

daily—it is impossible for your teeth to collect "so-called" film or your mouth to become over-acid. We claim no "secret process" with Kolynos. What we do claim is that your teeth under the care of Kolynos will become CLEAN—Just as clean as an ivory knife handle.

WHITE—Just as white as Nature intended them to be. We use no bleaching chemicals.

FREE FROM DECAY—Because a clean tooth does not decay.

Do not be led away by tooth pastes which advertise themselves as "bleachers" or "solvents." Teeth can only be cleaned in the old-time rational way—with a good tooth brush and a sensible tooth paste which cleans and polishes, and leaves your teeth what they should be—just clean.

POLICE SEEKING ANFUITES AMONG DEPARTING JAPS

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Sept. 29.—Following the arrival of a relief company two days ago, the Japanese Legation Guard consisting of a company of infantry left this morning for Japan on the usual home leave after a year's service in this country. Aside from the new company, the company of soldiers brought up from Tientsin during the late strife is still at the Legation, making a total of two companies in the barracks here. The Tientsin company, it is stated, will return to that place in the near future.

As the old Legation Guard left from Chien Men station this morning, a number of Chinese plain clothes policemen stationed upon the platform peered into the face of and minutely inspected each individual soldier of the company for the purpose of detecting any attempted ruse on the part of the Japanese to smuggle Anfu refugees out of their Legation and the capital in the disguise of Japanese infantrymen.

Questioned regarding the matter, a member of the Japanese Legation mellingly remarked that, in event the Japanese Minister determined to use such a ruse, there might two or three men among the refugees who could be got up to fit the part, but that the making of even temporary soldiers out of the remainder was quite hopeless.

The Japanese Famine Relief Committee held its first formal meeting today. It organised and elected official representatives to the International Committee, upon which Messrs. Fukusawa and Watanabe have served unofficially pending the formal confirmation of their committee.

BIBLE STUDENT IN SUNGKIANG IS CHOLERA VICTIM

(China Press Correspondence)

Sungkiang, Ku., Sept. 30.—Death came very suddenly Wednesday to one of the students in the Soochow University Bible School, which is located at Sungkiang. Wednesday morning between two and three o'clock, Loo Chien-au became violently ill. His roommates worked with him until 5 o'clock when they informed the principal, A. C. Bowen. Mr. Bowen immediately sent for the doctor but he could not get there before 7 o'clock. The doctor did his best for him but in spite of all efforts death came about 5 o'clock in the afternoon. His last hours seemed to be easy and he suffered little pain. He was conscious to the last and testified to his faith in Jesus.

Loo Chien-au was 24 year old and a native of Tai Tsung near Kwung San. He was a member of the church at Quinsan. He had been in the school but a month but in that time he had shown himself as an earnest and zealous student, living up to the principles which he had been taught.

His parents were notified immediately but have not yet arrived. The funeral service was held this afternoon in Lau Ung Daung and and the body was afterwards placed in a house to await the arrival of the parents. It is not yet known where interment will take place.

As far as can be ascertained, this is the first case of cholera among the students of the Bible School. There have been reports of several cases in the city but it will probably not spread very much. Sungkiang has some foreign trained doctors who know how to cope with the disease and all precautions possible will be taken.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy and retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse. It causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market."
J. E. SIMPSON, M. D.,
Chicago, Ill.

"Castoria is good for children and I frequently prescribe it, and always obtain the desired result."
F. GERALD BLAYTNEY, M. D.,
Buffalo, N. Y.

"A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is deserves the highest praise. I find it in use everywhere."
J. S. ALEXANDER, M. D.,
Omaha, Neb.

"I have prescribed Castoria to families for several years. It is all right. Mothers like it, for children will take it without any trouble."
C. A. WILSON, M. D.,
St. Louis, Mo.

"Have used your Castoria on various occasions in suitable cases and have found it a palatable and efficient laxative, especially in the various diseases of childhood."
CHAS. EDWARD GARDINER, M. D.,
Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."
J. A. BOARDMAN, M. D.,
Kansas City, Mo.

REVOLT APPEALS SENT TO MOSLEMS

Mustapha Kemal Promised Support To Uprising Against British In Mesopotamia

RECOMMENDS BOLSHEVISM

Copies Of Letters Sent By Revolutionary Leaders Are Received

Washington, July 31.—Letters written by leaders of the Turkish Nationalist movement, in which they seek to bring about anti-British demonstrations in Egypt, Mesopotamia and other Near Eastern lands, and in one of which the Moslems are urged to embrace Bolshevism, were received here today through official channels. One of the letters purports to have been written by Mustapha Kemal, the Turkish Nationalist leader, and is addressed to "Safwat Bey, Bagdad, and Hamid Bey, Mossup, Chief of the Bolshevist and Ottoman Nationalist movement, and forces."

"I shall come without fail with 80 percent of my forces," the letter says; "first in Mesopotamia and Mossul and finally in Syria, in order to protect our Nationalist rights as in the past. Up to then, and always maintaining your moral force and coolness, you must put forth all efforts morally and materially to save our country from the cowardly attacks of the British, to put obstacles in the way of their movements and to prevent injustices that they are committing. Then have interviews with the chiefs of the tribes whom they have gained and whom they still continue to win over with money, and in spreading the necessary propaganda and in order to chase out and punish the British oppressors and to unite your movements with the persons of our branch in Egypt in order to distribute to the proper parties the sums that have been sent to you; also, in order to do everything possible to persuade the population to be in favor of the Ottomans and against the British, without losing a moment's time, and if the degree of your efforts is only 1 percent to increase them a thousandfold. It is useless to tell you that you should warmly welcome the mission that has been elected from our Holy Warriors of Egypt and sent to you.

REVOLUTION WOULD PLEASE

"Give no importance whatever to the false terror and force of the British; each Mohammedan believer equals a hundred British atheists. Providence protects and aids us. The Ministry of War, the Cabinet, and especially His Majesty the Sultan, will be infinitely pleased and gratified if there should be a general revolution against the British.

"Even in admitting that at the Peace Conference at Paris and in Great Britain they shall give a decision unfavorable to Turkestan, thanks to the effort and courage of the Ottoman and Mohammedan heroes, by the help of God we shall punish and chase out our enemies, the British. You may count on this. Although our exterior politics is not altogether satisfactory, be in no way despairing.

"Advise and announce to the respectable population that soon all Mesopotamia and Syria will, as in the past, again come under the Ottoman flag."

Another letter is from "Emin of the Ottoman Nationalist Movement of Egypt," and is addressed to the "Presidents of the Committees of Ottoman Nationalist forces and of the Nationalist movement of Bagdad, Basra, Mossul, Suleimania, Kerkuk, Diarbekir and dependencies."

"The accursed intrigues," according to the Egyptian leader, "of the British have been the cause of the defeat of our army in the war.

"Every Moslem suffers by the malice, oppression and despotism now committed by the villainous British in every part of Mesopotamia. The Arabs, dupes of the British, desired protection and aid from them. Today there is not a single Arab or Moslem satisfied with the British Government. The Moslem world would purify Mesopotamia of the British; this is why everywhere Moslem Nationalist Movement Committees have been organised as with us. Even in Egypt all Moslems rush to your aid except a few Anglophile Moslems. Our commission in collaboration with the Islamic Society has collected important sums of money which has been sent to you with the mission, and money and missions will be sent you from time to time.

"The zeal shown by Sheik Mahmoud Effendi and the manner in which he defeated the British at Suleimania has been published even in India.

BOLSHEVISM RECOMMENDED

"Adopt the program of Bolshevism; certain ones of the great powers support us. In addition to financial help, war munitions will be sent you. The leading holy warrior, Mustapha Kemal Pasha, has given promise to send an army to your aid."

A third letter is addressed to Hachem Bey, Ottoman Military Staff, Mossul, and Mustapha Pasha, Bagdad, and it is signed by "Colonel Omar Chewki of the Turkish Ministry of War." It reads:

"The efforts that you make toward the organisation of a nationalist movement in Mesopotamia, as in Anatolia, deserve to be appreciated at their full value. The members of these organisations must inevitably be soldiers as every movement must be military. Be sure and certain that after his movement at Smyrna, our brother, Mustapha Kemal Pasha, will send the greater part of his armed forces into Mesopotamia."

Cat Electricutes Self, Causes Fire

A luckless black cat became trapped in some unexplainable manner yesterday afternoon behind the wainscoting of a corridor on the first floor of No. 29 Nanking Road and after electricuting itself in its efforts to escape it caused a short circuit in the wiring of the building and set the woodwork on fire.

Central Division responded to a call that was sent in when smoke was noticed excaping in the corridor and when the wall was opened the incipient blaze was disclosed and extinguished and the remains of the cat were removed.

JEWS PLAN TO AID REPATRIATES

Funds Being Raised Here For Refugees Being Sent Home From Siberia

A meeting of the local Jewish Communal Association was held on Thursday at No. 8 Jinkee Road for the purpose of making collections and distributing them to the Jewish war prisoners from Siberia who are expected to arrive here next week on the steamer Scharnhorst on their way to their native countries.

Mr. D. M. David, the President of the Association, presided and was supported by Messrs. J. E Salmon and Arthur Sopher, hon. secretary and treasurer respectively.

The Chairman dwelt on the importance of the meeting and urged that immediate support be given to the repatriated co-religionists who were bereft of all the necessities of life.

Mr. Salmon who supported the Chairman's appeal read a letter from Mr. R. Rosenbluth, delegate from the American Joint Distribution Committee, describing the pitiable plight of the refugees in Siberia and urging upon the local community to extend to them its helping hand

After some discussion a strong Committee was formed and pledges made to respond to the appeal of the Chairman for funds

Before dispersing, feeling references were made to the death of the late Mr. Jacob H. Schiff of New York, which was reported by Reuter a few days ago.

Mr. Schiff was called the greatest Jewish philanthropist for he had not only been a good steward, as Abraham was, of the wealth with which God blessed him in such large measure, but that, following the maxim of the Rabbis. "The promoter of benefactions ranks above the benefactor," by his powerful example he inspired ever so many to give a large share of their bounties and of their personal service to the cause of suffering humanity at large and for the maintenance of all the philanthropic and educational institutions of the land, whether Jewish or communal, national or international. His passing away in the present fretful storm through which the Jewish people are passing in Eastern Europe fills a gap which is hard to fill. The following cable was despatched forthwith to Mrs. Jacob Schiff, expressing the local Community's sympathy and condolence at the great loss sustained by the whole House of Israel:

"Shanghai Jewish Community grieves with you in your and Jewry's great loss. Accept condolence.

"D. M. David, President."

As a mark of respect to the deceased the audience remained standing and the resolution was passed silently.

Women Graduates Of U. S. In Japan Government Work

Miss Amakasu And Miss Hayashi Will Have Important Posts In Social Service Branches In Tokio

Tokio, September 23.—Two more women were added recently to the female forces in the responsible government service, when Miss Nabejo Amakasu and Miss Fukuko Hayashi were appointed to serve in the Social Service Bureau, newly created in the Home Office, which is under the direction of Mr. Tago, who was recently appointed its chief. Mr. Tago found it absolutely necessary to depend upon women to assist him in supervising the work of protection of children and prevention and relief of the poor. Women, he says, can pay more minute attention to details of various arrangements than men can.

The two women were appointed as shokutaku—temporary officials employed in case of need. Another woman is to be appointed also for the same bureau in due time. Both the women whose names have been announced are graduates of American colleges, Miss Amakasu graduating from Vassar College and Miss Hayashi from the University of Minnesota.

Japanese papers print short sketches of the lives of the two women, with the photograph of Miss Amakasu, who is already in Tokio, living in Omori, although Miss Hayashi is in Kyoto. Miss Amakasu is described as 32 years old graduate in 1906 of the Kojo High School for Girls in Yamagushi, who went in September of that year to enter the girl's school of the Forest Park College, graduating in May, 1910; entered the preparatory school of the Donohue College, graduating in 1911; entered Vassar in September, 1911, graduating from the college courses in June, 1915; upon her return, taught in Kyoto at the Heian Jogakko and in Osaka at the Milner Jogakko; coming to Tokio in March, this year, taught in the Tsuda's School of English for Women, and in the meantime graduated from the Social Policy Lecture Course given by the Kyochokai—Capital and Labor Harmonisation Society.

Miss Fukuko Hayashi is described as 30 years old, graduate of the Doshisha Jogakko in Kyoto in 1912; taught for two years in the Red Cross School for Nurses conducted by the Kyoto Prefecture until March, 1913; went to America to study physics at the Mac-Aulister College, Minnessota; entered in 1914 the Minnessota University, to study in the school of nursing, graduating in 1917; stayed in Vancouver until October, 1919, serving in the City Hospital of that city as a special nurse; returned to Japan in November, 1919.

Mr. Tago, the chief, pays high tributes to the two women. Miss Amakasu is a strong woman both physically and mentally, with a profound knowledge of social work. Miss Hayashi is specially learned in the science of protecting children and in midwifery, a woman full of life and cheerful. In arranging for houses of correction for children, for orphans, for old persons, for babies, or living houses for children, minute care is necessary, which men cannot do well as women. The women will for the present be used in inspection work.

Miss Amakasu, interviewed at the Y.W.C.A. in Kanda, where she was giving a lecture on the night of her appointment, said that she had not yet known of the appointment, but she will render her service as mother or sister to the poor. She told of her experience in working in the hospital for the poor in St. Louis, Missouri.

Peace With Russia Nearer

TWO cablegrams which we publish this morning, read together, point strongly to an early peace between Great Britain and Russia, and if this is brought about there is every likelihood of a general peace being established between the Allies and Russia, with the possible exception of France, which as one of the cablegrams says, is for the present remaining aloof from the negotiations.

The first message says that the Moscow Government has instructed its delegates at Riga to conclude peace with Poland on any terms short of disbandment of the Red Army. This is interesting from several standpoints. In the first place it indicates the serious nature of the reverses which the Red Army has suffered in the last six weeks. During that period the Polish armies have completely reversed the military position by the infliction of one crushing blow after another.

Further, it goes to show the extremity to which Lenin and Trotsky are reduced, with winter coming on. It is evident that they are unable to raise new armies and that they must obtain peace to save themselves. The present instructions are not anything like those of a few weeks ago when the triumphant Bolshevist armies were in front of Warsaw.

The second message is of even greater importance and if The Daily Mail which is responsible for the story is correctly informed it has scored one of the most spectacular newspaper beats of modern times. According to its statement a trade agreement has been drawn up between Great Britain and Soviet Russia, and while it has not been signed, "it is expected that negotiations will shortly be opened for the conclusion of formal peace with Russia."

The agreement provides "for the release of British prisoners in Russia, for a mutual undertaking on the part of each country that it shall not engage in hostilities against the other, for the Soviet to cease its anti-British propaganda and for the recognition of certain pre-war debt, viz., for goods supplied and services rendered. The agreement is conditional upon the cessation of Russia's hostilities against Poland.

In conclusion it is stated that the Cabinet is considering the agreement while similar agreements will be placed before Italy and Japan, but France is remaining aloof.

The clause which makes the agreement conditional upon the Russian cessation of hostilities against Poland, would seem partly to explain the latest instructions of Moscow to its peace delegates, but even the agreement itself would have been impossible six weeks ago when the Bolshevist armies, enthused by their victories over Poland were boldly threatening to overrun all Europe, and were issuing bombastic and dictatorial threats to the Allies.

It is evident, on the whole, that something decidedly unpleasant has happened to Lenin and Trotsky, which, if The Daily Mail is right, is enabling Great Britain to drive through a reasonable peace with Russia. And this is all to the good, not only from the standpoint of Russia but from that of all Europe.

And the famine was sore in the land.
Genesis. 41. I.

There are spectres that stalk the Earth,—
Poverty, War, Disease,
And of these
None compares with a nation's dearth.

There's a famine sore in this land,
The people starve and die.
We pass by—
Or we stretch out the succ'ring hand.

This China sends out from her stores
Treasures abundant, rare.
Do we care
For her people in Hunger's claws?

There's a call—"The Call of The East"—
"Feed us, we will repay.
"And one day
"Our salvation will be your feast."

KING EDWARD AND ARCHBISHOP MANNIX

Few people remember in the controversy which has arisen over Dr. Mannix's visit to Great Britain, that he, as President of Maynooth College, welcomed King Edward VII. there in 1903 with a warmth and hospitality that very much pleased that monarch of social gifts. The happy idea of decorating the college with King Edward's racing colors was Dr. Mannix's, and that and the reception given the King greatly displeased the extreme Nationalists of those days.

It was a happy moment for Ireland, so far as the auguries went. With Lord Dudley as Viceroy and George Wyndham as Chief Secretary, and with King Edward to back them up, the the Golden Age of Irish peace and prosperity seemed about to dawn.

King Edward had come to Ireland in a mood of friendship for the Irish. The story was that his Ministers had strongly opposed the Irish on the ground that it was not safe.

As a matter of fact, the Irish of all creeds and classes had what we call a "grah" that is to say, a soft spot, in their hearts for King Edward, not only because he was a sportsman but also because he was reported to be very friendly to the Irish claims, and to like the Irish, as his mother did not. He said to Lord MacDonnell (then Sir Antony) "Are the Irish disloyal?"

"No, sir, but they are discontented."

"What do they want?"

"They want education and they want security in their land."

"I shall come to Ireland with an Education Bill in one hand, and a Land Bill in the other."

This story was told by the late Barry O'Brien. The Land Bill and the Education Bill were indeed given.

THE LAST TRUMP

An old inhabitant of Kilmarnock had taken more whiskey than was good for him. On his way home, feeling very tired, he lay down in a churchyard for a rest, with his head against a tombstone. He was suddenly aroused from his sleep by the blast of a trumpet. He woke in a fright, thinking that the end of the world had come, but when he found himself alone, exclaimed, "Well, this is a poor show for Kilmarnock."

Demerara is the land of cocktails, and there and in the West Indian islands at all entertainments the "Swizzle" takes the place of any other form of liquid refreshment.

It is composed of rum, crushed ice, Angostura bitters, sugar, and perhaps a squeeze of lime or a dash of some liqueur, the whole swizzled together to a foaming cream which, to be properly appreciated, must be tossed off at a draught.

Gin or whisky may take the place of the rum, but rum has been and always will be, the drink of the West Indian settler.

Owing to the heat of the climate most people avoid a solid midday meal, but breakfast substantially at half-past ten or eleven. No self-respecting West Indian would dream of breakfasting without a preliminary swizzle.

Tea is taken early, and as a lawn tennis party or any form of exercise rarely starts before five, swizzles take the place of the afternoon tea that is the essential feature of all English entertainment. People ask their friends to drop in to "swizzles," and send invitations to "swizzle parties."

Moon Eclipse And Two Bright Planets This Month

By ST. ARGA ZER
(Shanghai College)

Moon's Phases for October:

Last Quarter:	Oct.	5	8:40 a.m.
New Moon:	,,	12	8:36 a.m.
First Quarter:	,,	20	8:15 a.m.
Full Moon:	,,	27	9:55 p.m.

There will be a total eclipse of the moon this month on the 27th, at a convenient time of the day for us all to watch it. The writer remembers when he was a little child being called out of bed by his father at two o'clock in the morning to see a total eclipse of the moon! The circumstances of the moon's eclipse this month are as follows:

Moon enters penumbra: October 27, 7:11 p.m.

Moon enters umbra: October 27, 8:12 p.m.

Total eclipse begins: October 27, 8:12 p.m.

Middle of eclipse: October 27, 9:57 p.m.

Total eclipse ends: October 27, 10:40 p.m.

Moon leaves umbra: October 27, 11:44 p.m.

Moon leaves penumbra: October 28, 0:45 a.m.

There is a moon eclipse whenever the earth gets exactly between the sun and the moon. We might think that this would happen every full moon, but because the moon is not usually in the plane of the earth's orbit, it does not get within the earth's shadow. This can be illustrated by three balls lying in a straight line on a table. A big foot ball may be taken to represent the sun at one end; a tennis ball is the earth in the middle; and a marble may represent the moon at the other end. Now if we pick up the marble and lift it a few inches above the table, still keeping it in straight line with the foot ball and the tennis ball; we can well see that if the foot ball were lit up it would shine over the tennis ball on the marble.

This is what usually happens each month at full moon; but twice each year, in the spring and in the autumn, the moon comes exactly in line and is on the same plane with the earth and sun, and then we have a moon eclipse. It will be interesting to watch the different stages of the eclipse. The shadow which the earth casts against the sky is a circle; or rather, there are two circles, an inner one which is very dark, called the umbra, and an outer one which is not so dark, called the penumbra. This can be illustrated very nicely in a room when you have two lamps burning at one end not far apart. If you stand in the middle of the room, you will see two shadows of yourself on the opposite wall, and a part in the middle where the shadows overlap, which is much darker than on the two sides. With this in mind the above table will be clear, and we shall be well repaid if we observe the circumstances of the eclipse at least until the middle.

WATCH FOR MERCURY Oct. 24

Almost the same time of the month, better three or four days before, we should watch the western sky for the planet Mercury, which will then be in a favorable position for naked eye observation. Mercury is the nearest of all the planets to the sun, and only about one-third the distance of our earth from the sun, so that its orbit lies wholly within our own, and we seldom see it, because it hugs the sun so closely, and is nearly always lost in his rays.

VENUS, THE STAR OF LOVE

But we are most of all interested in that splendid star that lights up the evening sky, and will soon cast a shadow through our windows after the sun has set. We bid her right welcome, because for more than a year we have not seen her as an evening star, though she shone very brightly in the morning before sunrise all last winter. But late in the spring she began to play hide and seek with the sun, and about July 4 she hid completely behind the sun, and then got on the other side and reappears now as an evening star. The ancient Greeks did not understand her movements, and thought that they saw two different stars, and called them by two different names: Lucifer was the morning star, and Hesperus was the evening star.

She is now far more brilliant than any star in the heavens, and will keep on increasing steadily in brightness all the coming winter until next March. In fact, you will be able to see her in broad daylight, if you know where to look. For this purpose watch for her from a certain fixed position over the top of some building, or just over the top of some tree; then look for her again on each succeeding day a little earlier, and taking your position a little farther west each day. With a little care you will be able to see her at noon.

HER MOVEMENT EXPLAINED

Everybody knows that Venus is not a star but a planet, and that she shines by reflected light, just like the moon. A great surprise awaits you if you look through a small telescope at Venus, for she will then look more like the moon than ever: not full but a crescent, considerably less than quarter. Her path is nearly a circle round the sun, which, as it is smaller than the earth's path, lies within it like Mercury's. Sometimes she is on the farther side of the sun, as happened last July: sometimes she is between us and the sun, but she is never like Jupiter directly opposite to the sun: never therefore in the east in the evening, or in the west in the morning. If a morning star, she appears in the east before sunrise: if an evening star she appears in the west after sundown, as she does this month and will continue to do until next March or April.

VENUS MOST LIKE EARTH

As to size and the condition of her atmosphere, and in many other respects, Venus is the nearest like our earth of any planets that we know. But her nearness to the sun and the clouds which surround her prevent our seeing her as she really is. We cannot see her surface at all, as we do that of Mars or of the moon. But as her atmosphere is so like ours she probably has rain and streams of water and oceans. Astronomers are not certain as to her rotation on her axis, but the preponderance of evidence is in favor of a long period, such that she rotates in the same time as she revolves around the sun, or once in 225 days such as ours. Thus she always keeps the same side towards the sun, just as our moon keeps same side towards our earth. This means that Venus does not have the alternation of day and night, but that on one side it is continuous day, with the sun apparently fixed in the same spot of the heavens; while on the other side it is an interminable night, with no moon to lighten the gloom. Nevertheless, our earth must appear like a very brilliant planet, more than four times as bright as Venus appears to us, provided the clouds there do not shut our light from view.

IS VENUS PEOPLED?

Regarding this most interesting question Professor Moulton, who is known to be very conservative in such matters, says: "Considered as a whole, Venus is more like the earth than any other planet; and so far as can be determined, it is in a condition in which life can flourish. In fact, if any other planet than the earth is inhabited, that one is probably Venus."

How would you like to live on Venus? I wonder what the difference is in the value of real estate on the side toward the sun as compared with the darker side. Either condition would be terribly monotonous to us. There would be one place, about in the middle, where the sun would always be right overhead. It would be twice as big as seen from here, because nearer, and therefore twice as hot. At varying distances from this spot would lie zones where the rays of the sun would be more slanting. In any given place the sun would always appear as though fixed in one position.

At a distance of 10,000 miles or so from the center there would be a zone where the sun would always be on the horizon; and it would be always morning, or evening, as you chose to call it. There would also be a zone of twilight, as well as the regions of blackest night. We shall leave the reader to speculate in what zone he would prefer to live. Let us hope that no evil social regime there bestows upon fortune's favorites always the best tempered climate, while consigning the less favored ones either to outer darkness or to blistering regions underneath the sun.

If the daylight region of Venus should be a continent, surrounded by a wide and stormy sea, we can imagine with what terror the inhabitants would view the sailing far out into the darkness. Some brave Columbus among them would have tremendous difficulty trying to get a crew to sail around their globe. Perhaps they have not yet found out that their world is round! If they have never crossed over to the dark side, they are perhaps not even aware of the existence of the stars!

The Rising Tide Of Japan's Liberalism

The Younger Generation Is Solid For Democracy

BY PROFESSOR S. YOSHINO

(The following is an abridged translation of a serial Open Letter which Dr. Yoshino, one of the leading lights of Japanese liberalism, addressed to the American Congressmen in the columns of the Tokio Asahi. This was commented on in a recent cable).

Nothing is a greater source of regret to the Japanese at large than to see their country represented abroad, especially in America, as wedded to militarism and bureaucratism. Some of them deprecate such a characterisation of Japan in that they believe in liberalism and wish her to shape her course in accord with the principle of democracy, while others do so because they fear that the knowledge that Japan is intent on conquest may obstruct their militaristic ambitions. But whatever the reasons, it is undeniable that the majority of the Japanese are agreed in regretting that Japan is regarded as for a militaristic country in foreign lands.

"There is a old saying to the effect that quarrelling brothers will compose their dispute once there turns up a common enemy. And it is sad to reflect that there are still among us many whose thoughts and actions are governed by the spirit embodied in this saying. The extent to which this spirit has a firm hold on the Japanese will be seen from the fact that a fearless critic of his own country is speedily made the object of social ostracism even though there is clear evidence that he has the right on his side.

LIBERALISM IS GROWING

"The voice of liberalism in Japan is still weak, and is liable to be drowned in the general cry for expansion on aggressive lines. Democracy in Japan has not yet developed into a political creed, but is still a sentiment. It is not without reason that a superficial observer, whose vision does not penetrate the surface of things, should come to the conclusion that Japan is an out and out follower of militarism. This is, needless to say, a fair statement of the case, for if an observer is sufficiently keen-visioned he will have no difficulty in discerning on every side the fermentation of a new idea, a new mode of thinking, which is a flat denial of the traditional way of thinking. The younger people of the Japanese community, he will find, are averse to bureaucracy and all that it stands for. There is already a tendency, steadily expanding, to see things as they are, especially among the student classes. If it is shown that militarism is requisite for the development of Japan, the younger people will not hesitate about declaring so to the world, and take that system up forthwith. But as far as my observations go, there is not the least fear of their being brought over to the side of the militarists. On the contrary, they are firmly convinced that the path which Japan should follow, if she wishes to progress, should be in the direction of liberalism. Not only do they wish to see their country purged of all remnants of militarism, but they at the same time insist that all which hinders the growth of democracy should be swept from the surface of the earth.

WHAT THE YOUNG MEN THINK

"The younger people of Japan do not hide the fact that Japan has in the past strayed from the right path. In this respect they do not excuse themselves like their elder compatriots. They are determined that Japan shall take the first step in the right direction, and are prepared to do their uttermost to call a halt if she shows signs of going astray.

"This new tendency among the younger people of Japan is of comparatively recent origin. It has become noticeable only since the world war. I must not be understood to mean that before that there was no liberalism in Japan. There was much antagonism against bureaucracy and militarism, especially in the days following the conclusion of the Russian war, but this was only when the issue was about domestic policy. As for the question of dealing with other countries, they were not only powerless to do anything in the way of checking aggressive policy, but kept silence.

A COMPARISON

"The change which has come in the attitude of the younger people towards militarism since the late war may be best seen by a comparision of the following incidents. Ten years ago when Dr. Tomidzu was dismissed from the Tokio Imperial University because of his open advocacy of the annexation of Baikal, all the sympathies of the students were with the Doctor. What was the attitude of the students of the same school when Mr. Morito was recently driven out of the same university because he wrote an article in explanation of Kropotkin's teachings? I may say there are many professors in the Imperial University who still hold as conservative ideas as Dr. Tomidzu, but I say for certain that these professors are no longer listened to by the students.

JAPANESE LOVE PEACE

"It would not be out of place to consider how the older section of the community came to hold reactionary ideas. The Japanese were essentially a peace-loving nation, as a glance at the history of the early period of the Tokugawa era shows. It was after Japan was introduced to the outside world that Japan's policy of expansion came into being. It is natural that Japan, whose eyes were first opened to the conditions in Europe, should have come to the conclusion that the way to make her strong and secure against foreign aggression was to follow the European example and adopt militarism. How to make Japan strong became a question, which she answered by increasing her wealth and augmenting her defenses. In the later days of the Tokugawa era, Japan had a menace in Russia and America, and how to make Japan capable of resisting attacks by these countries occupied the attention of the people. In view of these facts, it may be said that Japan's present policy essentially founded on militarism is not based on the inherent nature of the people, but may be traced to the fear which they felt of the foreign countries. This is why I say that the opposition of the older people to the idea of the country being democratised does not arise from a firm conviction, and that once it is shown that militarism is out of place in the present days they will not hesitate to embrace democracy

If Japan Went To War With America—A Military View

BY LIEUT.-GENERAL K. SATO
(Japan Advertiser)

Under the heading "If Japan went to War with America" Lieutenant-General Kojiro Sato has a serial article in the Hochi. The following is the summary of the first portion:

"Whether Japan will gain the day in the event of war with America is a question to which most Japanese have no means of finding even an approximate answer, and this is no wonder when their lack of military knowledge is considered. As for the military men, they are compelled by military laws to refrain from discussing openly questions of this description. The uninitiated, whose vision does not go below the surface, dazzled by the outward grandeur of American armaments, are apt to conclude that Japan is no match for America on the battlefield. Hence the bogey of American peril possesses the Japanese people at large. That Japanese policy in China and Siberia has been spineless is further evidence of the extent to which the Japanese are the victims of this American peril. Even the Americans, notwithstanding that they have generally greater measure of military knowledge than the Japanese, are not without fear of Japan, not particularly because Japan appears to them strong enough to constitute a menace, but because once it was shown that the war did not progress favorably for her, she might resign herself to the inevitable, squat on the ground, so to speak and challenge the victors by saying "Cut me and strike me, to your heart's content." As I said above, the Americans do not fear Japan in the sense that she is strong enough to form a menace to them, but they have had enough experience of the Japanese to be afraid of them. America, so to speak, pulled the ear of Japan to see what the latter was capable of in the way of retaliation, and found to her surprise that Japan, stead of avenging herself, did not even complain. America finally kicked Japan, but with the same result, the same passiveness on the part of Japan. Hence Americans slight Japan as a nation that a stronger can deal with as it likes.

"When wars with China and Russia were discussed, all excepting the military men, shook their heads to the outcome of the conflicts, and although the military men insisted that the opportunity must not be missed, the authorities hesitated about declaring war. This hesitancy, needless to say, came from their lack of knowledge of the condition of the countries against which Japan was to declare war.

"We do not like the valor of ignorance, but cowardice based on ignorance is a thing to be despised. When Tokimune killed Chinese emissaries, he may have incurred the charge of valor unsupported by intelligence, those who deprecated the wars with China and Russia revealed the fullest measure of cowardice based on ignorance. The general attitude of the Japanese towards China and Russia on the eve of these wars was formed under the influence of fear of the strength of the enemy as indicated in his outward conditions. While the public had misgivings about the strength of China and Russia, the military men had long discovered that the disease was eating up the hearts of these countries.

The Americans may in some respects be likened to Yedokko (Tokio Cockneys). Their bearing may inspire their opponents with fear, but faced with an equally strong attitude, they become faint-hearted.

Put Your Finger In The Wound And Holler

Direct pressure is what might be called the first aid to surgery. Many a hemorrhage that would otherwise have proved fatal has been stopped by this primitive method. In an address read before the Sullivan County Medical Society by Dr. Martin W. Ware of New York he recalled an examination question put by an astute old surgeon to a class of medical students, every one of whom failed to answer it correctly. The question and answers were as follows:

"One of two physicians, in full evening dress, returning from a dance, was suddenly stabbed in the neck, following which a huge gush of blood took place. What would you have done for your injured companion?

"Answers: One—would have rung for an ambulance. 'Before the ambulance responded an undertaker would have been more in place,' said the examiner.

"Another—to outdistance the previous applicant—offered the use of his pocket instruments, to which the examiner retorted, 'they are not usually carried about at a dance.'

"The last applicant thought he would be equal to the occasion, by crowding a handkerchief into the wound. 'That,' said the examiner, 'let us assume, was left as a souvenir with the lady.'

"It therefore remained for the examining surgeon to point out what is done in daily practice, 'Place the finger into the wound and holler for help.'"

Dr. Ware went on to tell of a physician who was out with his wife in an automobile when a collision took place, shattering the glass windshield, a fragment of which struck the wife in the neck and cut her jugular vein. The physician pressed his finger into the neck wound and sped on to the nearest hospital, where surgical measures were successfully applied.

"Very much in common with this type of hemorrhage is that of varicose veins," he continued. "Hemorrhage from these needs only pressure with gauze.

"In hemorrhage following extraction of the teeth by the dentist, the doctor's advice is often sought—'What to do?' Pressure! Simply take a small handkerchief, roll it and bite upon it and caution not to look at it for at least half an hour."

Speaking of other minor wounds, he said:

"Needles are most elusive foreign bodies—even located by X-ray, they are very difficult to remove. I daresay many, many of you have been chagrined or witnessed such on the part of the surgeon trying to ferret out the needle. The wanderings of needles are famous in the annals of medical literature, and the impunity of their itinerary is likewise. I always plead 'non vult' against their removal, even when there is a metastatic deposit of that needle in the brain of the host. If then I am none the less importuned to search the haystack, I make a clean breast of the difficulties and once more plead 'non possums' before yielding to force majeure.

"The paradox of infections is certainly a furuncle, commonly designated a boil, and facetiously referred to as an ingrown hair, which I have never seen. A furuncle is potential of much suffering and evil. In the initial stage I prefer the use of flaxseed poultices or a poultice of the clay ointments, and when liquefaction has set in, spontaneous perforation may result or a small incision will facilitate expulsion of the core. At any time that adjacent glands become tender or enlarged general anesthesia and incision are in place."

For ulcers and granulating surface wounds Dr. Ware recommended absolute rest, with exposure to sun in the open air.

LEARN AND REMEMBER

Unless you are sure of anything keep your mouth shut, listen and watch.

You have been placed in situations which were unfamiliar to you, where you did not know what to do or to say, and more than likely your first thought was to put up a bold front and bluff the thing through, believing that brusqueness of manner and speech might carry you through.

Remember this—you cannot bluff in the presence of those who know.

Better go carefully, feel your way, until you have a chance of learning from those who can go ahead because they do know.

In trying to bluff you just display your ignorance and lose opportunity to learn, with the result that you are no better off when the same condition arises in the future.

When you find yourself in a predicament where you do not know what course to pursue, you should desire to gain the information which would obviate the same circumstance for you at some future time.

Every situation which baffles you should make you better fitted to go through life because you have solved each successive problem.

Wonderful Sleep Of Hibernation Generally Found Among Cold-Blooded Animals, Not Possible With Modern Man

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

"Is it possible for the Esquimos to hibernate for several months in a cave without food? When the bear does hibernate, does the blood of the animal circulate regularly and does the heart also beat normally? Reader, Zanesville, Wis."

Hibernation is simply a long sleep (the word means "Winter sleep"), in which the phenomena of ordinary sleep are intensified as well as prolonged in duration. Although men of no race hibernate yet the act, or faculty, of hibernation is not so completely foreign to human physiology as it seems. It would require only the loss of a certain physiological peculiarity which there is reason to believe has been slowly developed through evolution, viz. "warm-bloodedness," (or the ability to maintain the blood at a fixed temperature) in order that a man might pass the Winter as nctionless, and as unconscious of the cold and the snow blizzards, as is the hibernating bear, wood-chuck, chipmunk or tortoise.

It is among "cold-blooded" animals that the habit of hibernation generally exists. It is practised by comparatively few species of warm-blooded animals, and those species appear to lack the power to maintain a fixed or normal temperature of the blood without regard to the temperature of the surrounding medium. Thus, in the hibernating bear the blood temperature is lowered nearly to coincidence with that of the air, or the immediate surroundings. Yet the blood continues to circulate, and the heart to beat, though both are slowed down, while the respiration is totally suspended.

If man's blood was still capable as it may once have been, at least when it flowed in the veins of biological predecessors, of sinking to low temperature without involving a cessation of the power of circulation, he might "do" Brother Bruin's peaceful hiemal slumbers.

DANGER IN HIBERNATION

But it must not be supposed that the lowering of blood temperature which attends hibernation can be carried indefinitely far. Extreme cold will kill a bear, or any other hibernating mammal, if the blood and the tissues are actually frozen. It is for this reason that the instinct of such animals leads them to protect themselves, in preparation for their Winter sleep, by burrowing deep into the ground, or by finding shelter, in hollow trees, caves, or elsewhere, against extremes of temperature. It is said that if a cold snap reaches a hibernating animal, in spite of these precautions, it will awaken from its slumber, and, if it cannot find better shelter, will perish of the cold.

FROZEN FROG MAY LIVE

But cold-blooded animals, such as frogs and fish, may, in some cases, actually be frozen hard and yet retain life and be resuscitated. These things seem almost miraculous to us because we too often measure the possibilities of other creatures by our own limitations. Our anthropocentric (centering in man) tendencies of thought often make us belittle God and stumble over nature. They are to be seen at work whenever the question of the habitability of other planets than the earth comes under discussion.

It is interesting that perhaps the principal underlying cause of the habit of hibernation is the avoidance of hunger. But does not that fact bring it very close to humanity? The starving man, woman or child is apt to fall into a lethargic slumber, which may even have the effect of prolonging life, at least for a short time, by slowing down the circulation.

It has been observed, too, that there is a slight, though measurable fall of the bodily temperature of a sleeping man, while every test indicates that between ordinary sleep and hibernation the difference is only one of degree.

SLOWLY ABSORB FAT

During hibernation, of course, there is a complete stoppage of all alimentation. No food enters the body. However, the digestive function, or at least the assimilative action, must continue to go on feebly because the body of the sleeping animal absorbs the fat stored during its waking time, and when the bear walks out into the first Spring sunshine he is often but a shadow of his well-filled Autumn figure. The singular statement is made that some animals refrain from falling into the Winter sleep if the supply of food during the preceding season has been too small to enable them to accumulate the necessary quantity of fat.

In hot countries "aestivation," or "Summer sleep," takes the place of hibernation, of which it is the precise counterpart. In both cases lack of food is the determining cause. Crocodiles and alligators and sometimes anacondas and boa constrictors, bury themselves in hardened mud, as do frogs and toads during dry seasons, even in temperate climes.

Keeps Windshield Clear

Louis George, who has for twelve years been a chauffeur in New York, writes that for the last two years he has been keeping his windshield clear on rainy days in a very simple manner. When the windshield is first wet he takes a piece of chamois skin, a clean rag or, if he has nothing else handy a piece of newspaper and rubs the glass with it pressing quite hard and he says the glass stays clear so long as the rain lasts.

Woman's Life After 35 Happier Than A Man's

London, August 14.—Addressing the Medico-Legal Society, Dr. Josiah Oldfield said statistics covering a large number of years indicated that women's lives after thirty-five years were pleasanter and more attractive than men's.

In spite of the popular idea that the young woman was the queen of the earth, and that at sweet seventeen she had the world at her feet, it was evidenced that from the ages of fifteen to thirty-five more young women committed suicide than young men.

After thirty-five the burden of life became so much heavier for men, or life became so much more rosy for women, that from thirty-five to eighty men were always largely in the majority among suicides.

Cotton Market

Messrs. J. Spunt and Co., write as follows in their report dated October 2:

China Cotton.—The past week has been an uneventful one as far as prices are concerned and the Mid-Autumn festival intervening, which is one of the periods of native settlements, there transpired nothing to mar the festivities, such being celebrated in accordance with ancient custom and to which may be attributed the meager volume of business done at slightly receding figures, evincing at the close an easier undertone.

The big drop in Mid-Americans, the very much depressed yarn markets and the absence of any revivifying local demand do not appear to have influenced to any appreciable degree prices on the local staple, which may be accounted for on the one hand by the fact of the domestic new crop not proving to be as abundant as was expected in the early part of August and on the other by the farmers being financially supported to the extent that they show no eagerness to part with their stocks at rates to meet spinners' expectations and which latter circumstance also accounts for the continued scanty receipts from the interior marts. Tone of the market Easy.

Hankow Market

Hankow, September 22, 1920.

FINANCE AND MONEY MARKET

Another quiet week with Bills scarce and very little enquiry for Remittance. Taels T.T. on Shanghai hardened to 97⅛ and closed firm with Banks unwilling sellers. Dollars steady at 70.2-70.4 buyers and sellers respectively. Interest 13 percent. Changsha Exchange Nominal.

IMPORTS

There is nothing to report. Owing to the near approach of the Autumn Festival, the market is dead.

EXPORTS

Seeds after some hesitation are again reported stronger. Beans are very firm. There is very little interest in other products.
